A Look at Demonology

QUOTE

Sat Jan 26, 2008 2:43 pm

Hello. My name is Paul Dale Roberts, demonologist and occult investigator. That is one of the perks of being a writer, I can basically give myself any title that I want. But, let me digress. Why would I call myself a demonogist? Have I ever exorcised a demon out of a possessed person? The answer is 'no'. Have I ever investigated a demonic home? The answer is 'no'. But, I will tell you I do know something about demons and in this article I will take you down the road of demonology. Some of our greatest demonologists have had failed attempts of exorcism or identifying a demon for that matter. Failed attempts that actually lead to death. But, we'll talk about that later. Where did this term demon come from?

Homer used the term demons and gods more or less interchangeably. Demons were thought of as intermediaries between men and gods. Some people even thought that demons were once men, while others thought that demons were once angels and that they followed Lucifer in his coup against God and were banished to Earth. We now think of demons as malignant spirits that are here to do us harm. To be a good demonologist, here are some steps in identifying certain demonic attributes, let's look over them.

Demoniacal Possession: When a human is inhabited or 'taken over' by a demon. A possessed human will have no control over their own will. Most cases of demon possession have been diagnosed as mental illness. The Catholic Church in the shadow of Josephus is known to identify and exorcise real demoniacal possession.

Demon Influence of Mankind: Most people felt demonic activity increased during the rise of Nazism and World War II. According to many spiritual leaders, demons set the motion for events with groups like the Peoples' Temple and David Koresh's cult. The main goal of demons is the ability to turn mankind from God and lead us down to destruction, such as the mass suicide done through poisoned Kool-Aid event in Guyana under the influence of Reverend Jim Jones or the Waco destruction that David Koresh initiated when confronted by the ATF and the FBI. From the 70s to the 80s, strange murders were taking place on the US Eastern states in which the suspects were telling the police that God told them to commit murder. Many people believe that what these murderers saw or heard, was not God or an angel, but was a demon in disguise of God or an angel and would influence the suspect to commit random murder.

Bringing Demons into Our Lives.
Demons live in an outworldly realm and they need a portal to enter our own reality. Many people believe a portal can be opened with the use of an Ouija Board. Other portals could be in our own being, paranoid schizophrenia could be a link to altered mental states that may be connected to a strong psychic ability, such as LSD took many people in an altered state of consciousness that may open an inner portal within ourselves, that may allow a demon to inhabit our bodies. Interdimensional portals are not always for demons as in the case of the Skin Walker Ranch in Utah. This is portal that opened up near this Utah ranch that brought in UFOs, appearances of huge otherworldly creatures, a bulletproof werewolf, flying orbs of light that have dazzling maneuverability. This portal brought on poltergeist activity and even vanishing and mutilated cattle. So-called experts claim that perhaps the UFOs are interested in the Gilsonite deposits near and around that ranch, but that doesn't explain away the bullet-proof werewolf that appeared. The last wolf in Utah was killed in 1929. The family that lived on the Skin Walker ranch were terrorized by the entities that seem to be flowing from this portal. Perhaps the legend of American Indians that were known to be skin walkers or shapeshifters, that inhabited the area around this ranch were influenced by this mystical portal into the unknown. It makes you think that all things paranormal may just be connected, because even demons seemed to make their appearance from the portal at Skin Walker Ranch. Perhaps portals into the unknown can lead us like some Stargate, into other dimensional realities where energy beings, werewolves, demons and aliens may exist.

Let's take a look at a list of demons, this is only a partial list, there are many other type of demons in existence.
Incubi and Succubi - who stimulate lust and perversion.
Acham - the demon of Thursday.
Alrinach - demon of shipwrecks.

Behemoth - demon of animal strength.
Belial - demon for the Sidonians
Beezebub - one of the Princes of Hell.

Mastiphal - one of the Princes of Darkness.
Moloch
Nightmares - they are known to disturb our sleep with visions of horror.
Poltergeists - mischievous spirits. (Note: some paranormal investigators do not believe poltergeists are demons. They believe poltergeists manifest from projected energy from a child going through puberty stages).
Saalah - demon that lures you into the woods.
Satan
Tenebrion - Spirit of darkness.
Verdelet - demon who carries witches to the Sabbath.

The demons that are associated with the Seven Deadly Sins are:
Lucifer - Pride
Mammon - Avarice
Asmodeus - Lust
Satan - Anger
Beelzebub - Gluttony
Leviathan - Envy
Belphegor - Vanity and Sloth

Some Ufologists and religious leaders associate UFOs with angels and demons. Even Billy Graham thought that perhaps UFOs could be angels. It appears that aliens are aware of our aura and what we may call heaven. Take for example, the famous case of the alien abduction of Betty Andreasson. One of the aliens that abducted her told her that her real home is a world of light, where the 'One' resides. The alien continued to say that all humans will experience this world. If this alien was aware of a world of light, wouldn't this alien also know about a world of darkness that perhaps demons live at? The alien claimed that humans are interdimensional beings, because we enter this reality through birth and leave this reality through death. Another abductee claims her alien abductor said we are only mere vessels that harbor a living energy entity, which could be interpreted as our souls.

How can we identify demon activity?
1. The appearance of black smoke, black mist or black fog.
2. The odd behavior of occupants that live in a demonic haunted home. Such as defecation or urination around the home. Unusual vomiting activity by occupants. Strange behavior and abnormal cursing by occupants. Convulsions, unusual shaking, eyes out of focus.
3. Objects around the home being violently thrown around.
4. Extreme anger and hatred felt by one of the occupants of the home.
5. Domestic violence within the household.

Main Purpose of Demon that is Haunting a Home.
1. To create chaos and discord with the family.
2. To break up the family unit.
3. To turn the family away from God and their beliefs.

The best way to cast out a demon from a home, is to contact your church. Methods used are:
1. Encircling the possessed occupant and placing your hand on their body. Pray for a 'hedge of protection' for this person. A hedge of protection that will bring on angels to this home that will chase out any demon spirits.

2. Placing religious paraphernalia throughout the home. Figurines and images of angels should be placed strategically throughout your home.
3. Bless the home with your preacher or priest with holy water and the burning of sage. The family leader should initiate the prayer throughout each room of the house and lead the demon towards an exit of the home. Your clergyman should suggest what prayers should be read.
4. People of the Catholic faith, make the sign of the cross, they call upon their faith and demand the evil entity to leave their home and go back to where it came from, in the name of God.
5. Call upon God and his Army of Angels to protect your home through prayer.

Successful exorcisms of demons have been performed by John Paul II three times in 1978, 1982 and the year 2000. Jesus is known to have cast out demons on six separate occasions.

There have been failures, I won't even mention the Salem Witch Trials or the Spanish Inquisition, but I will talk about Anneliese Michel who died in 1976. Anneliese had epilepsy and the family stopped her treatment for this disease and consulted their church. The Catholic Church did an exorcism that lead to Anneliese's death, she died of malnutrition. The parents and the priests were charged with negligent homicide, which inspired the movie 'The Exorcism of Emily Rose'.

Another failure was Maricica Irina Cornici. She was chained up to a cross for 3 days by her Orthodox priest and 4 nuns. The Orthodox priest and 4 nuns were charged with murder in Romania.

Some of our greatest minds were influenced by demons. Take Leonardo da Vinci, he was influenced by Lucifer the light bearer, the personification of the Morning Star. Yes, Leonardo followed the old Luciferan way, which influenced his paintings, as legend has it.

A case of mass demonic possession occurred in Loudun, Vienne in France, in the year 1634. The nuns were taken over by erotomania. They screamed out blasphemies and started displaying their genitalia. The demons that were blamed in this mass hysteria were Balan, Iscaron, Leviathan and Behemoth.

The sons of Adam should never consult or speak of the Necronomicon, because lustful and angry demons surround us and we should always hold onto our faith in case we are ever confronted by a demonic entity. Demonic activity in a home is a rarity and from the 40 plus investigations I have been on, I have never witnessed or been involved in a demonic investigation or cleansing of a home. H.P.I. (Haunted and Paranormal Investigations) of Northern California will investigate all things considered paranormal. We will not scoff or ignore any claims of demonic hauntings. We are here to seek the truth and if you feel you are a victim of a demonic haunting, please do not hesitate to call us. Before I go, there is something I majorly forgot in this article.

Demons have the ability to follow the family they are haunting. With a snap of your fingers, a demon can be in San Francisco and teleport as far away as Hong Kong, China. Demons are powerful and can be anywhere in the world in a moment's notice.

When investigating a possible demonic haunting, it's important to learn the name of the demon that you are investigating and be prepared to have information about this type of demon and what will be the best way to handle this demon. Have a prayer book readily available and select the best prayers to recite for engaging a demon.

Demons will use your past sins and present them to you. Demons are able to go into your mind and discover your past wrongs. They will present or talk about your past sins, trying to humiliate you and embarrass you. Be prepared to except the sins that are presented to you and move on with your mission of expelling the demon from the home.

Legion aka the Gadarene demon is recognized as a demon that has caused the most disturbances in a household. Legion is a demon that is made up of many demons, henceforth the name 'Legion'. When confronting Legion, it is important to have a clergyman with you, because Legion is a powerful malevolent entity. When Legion was asked to give his name, his words were: "My name is Legion, for we are many."

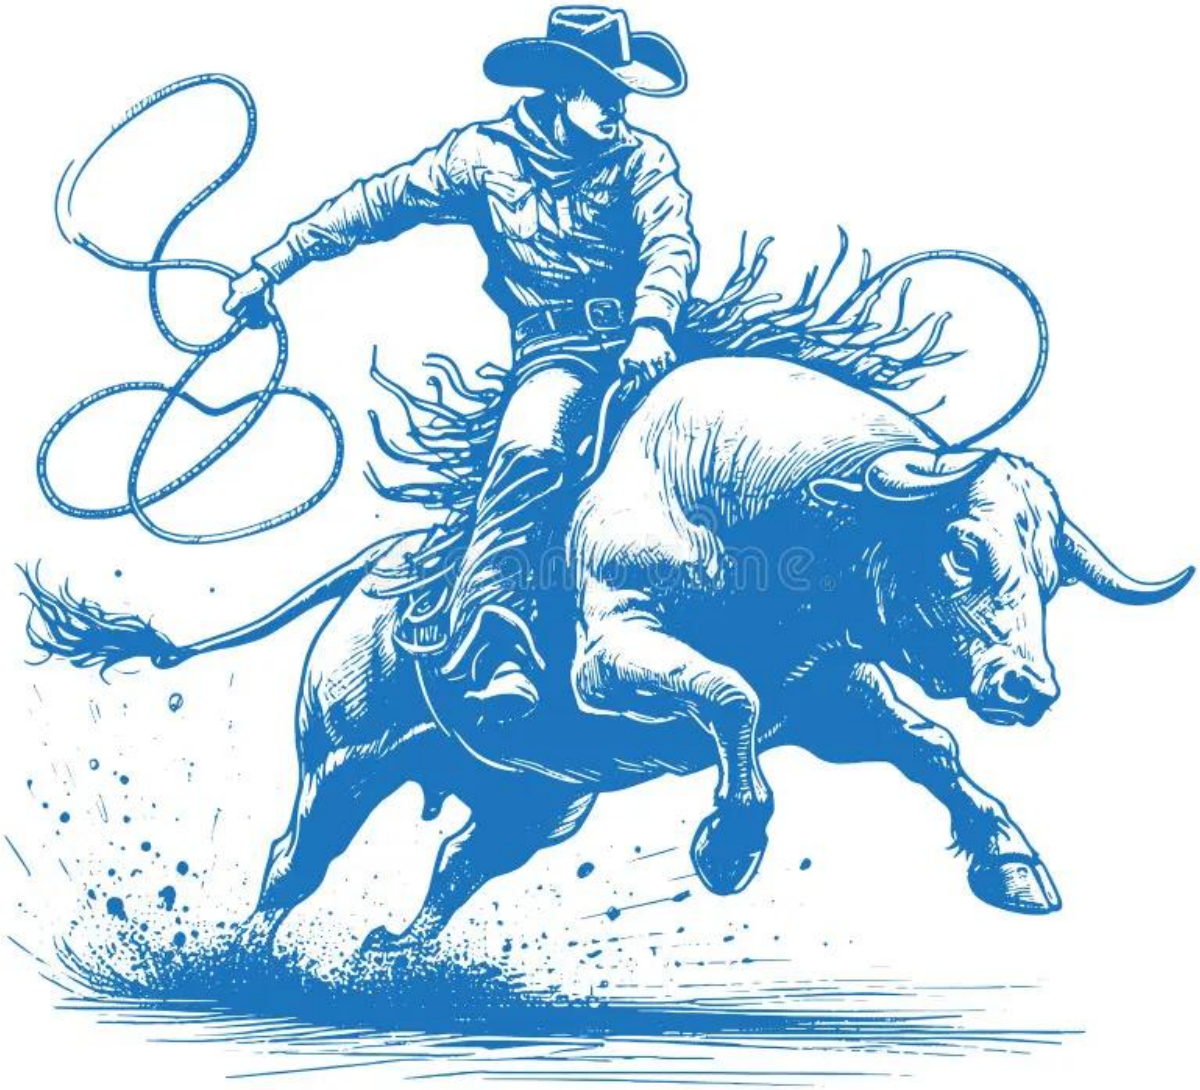
THE MEETING: SNAKE SPECIALIZED OPS CONFRONT BULLRIDER AND THE LEGENDARY PECOS BILL!
STORY BY PAUL DALE ROBERTS

The dusty, ancient stones of Monte Albán baked under the intense Oaxacan sun. Towering Zapotec pyramids framed a tense standoff.

On one side stood Snake Specialized Ops—an imposing, scales-and-leather-clad unit looking like they just stepped out of a high-stakes tactical nightmare. King Cobra, Viper, Mamba, Sidewinder, Copperhead, Puff Adder, and Rattlesnake Cody stood shoulder-to-shoulder, weapons at the ready, their eyes locked on the horizon.

The ground began to rumble.

A low, vibrating snort echoed across the grand plaza as a massive creature stepped into the ruins. It was a bull of impossible proportions, its hide a deep, midnight-dark blue that seemed to swallow the sunlight. Straddling the beast was Bullrider—a mountain of a cowboy with shoulders as wide as a barn door, a rugged jawline, and a Stetson tilted low.



Trotting up right beside him on a spirited stallion was none other than the legendary Pecos Bill, casually twirling a lasso made of a live rattlesnake, looking completely unfazed by the heavily armed strike team.

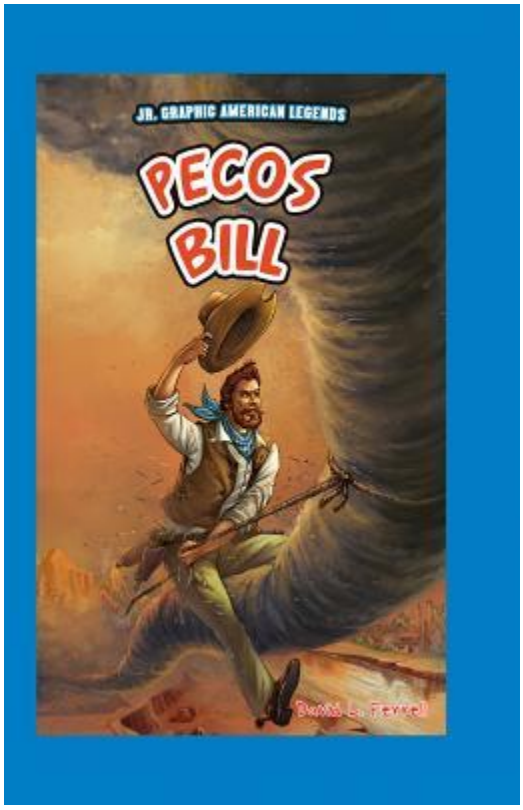
The Confrontation

"You're a long way from the lone star state, cowboy," Rattlesnake Cody called out, his hand resting near his holster.

Bullrider patted the massive neck of his dark blue bull, bringing the beast to a halt just yards away from the ops team. He looked down from his massive mount, a slow grin spreading across his face.

"We like the history down here," Bullrider boomed, his voice like rolling thunder. "But it looks to me like we stumbled into a nest of vipers."

"That's Specialized Ops to you," Mamba countered, stepping forward as her tactical gear shifted. The massive snake draped across her shoulders hissed in punctuation.



Pecos Bill let out a hearty laugh, tipping his hat toward Sidewinder and Copperhead. "Well now, don't get your scales in a twist, darlin'. My friend Bullrider here just wanted to see if the rumors were true. They said a whole army of snakes was taking over the ruins."

King Cobra, towering in his hood and body armor, raised his rifle slightly. "We are securing the perimeter. Turn that oversized blue steer around."

The air grew thick with tension. Puff Adder tightened his grip on his assault rifle, and Viper slipped into a low, lethal stance. Bullrider didn't flinch; he merely tightened his grip on the reins of his dark blue bull, ready to charge if a single trigger was pulled.

The wind howled through the ancient valley, carrying the scent of dust, leather, and impending chaos. Neither side was backing down.

There are ruins of an old partial stone house in forest park, called the old witches house. It's not much more than a tagged up burnt stone remains during the day, but at night after the park closes, it's said that you can hear the old witch crying in the distance. The story goes that there were two young lovers that were madly in love. The boys father found out and forbid him from seeing her anymore as she had been deemed an outcast. The father found them still together and killed his own son, and the rest of village chased her into the woods. She built this cottage and when the people found it, they burnt it down with her still inside. Tragic story but it definitely has haunted vibes when it starts getting dark. There's a huge fine if you get caught in that part of the park after dark but that doesn't stop people from trying to stay. People have reported becoming disoriented and losing their way back to the parking area. The are a handful of other spots that have active businesses running inside them that also report strange phenomena and paranormal activity.

The Castle of Good Hope was built by the Dutch East India Company between 1666 and 1679, the Castle is the oldest existing building in South Africa. It replaced an older fort called the Fort de Goede Hoop which was constructed from clay and timber and built by Jan van Riebeeck upon his arrival at the Cape of Good Hope in 1652. Two redoubts, Redoubt Kyckuit (Lookout) and Redoubt Duijnhoop (Duneheap) were built at the mouth of the Salt River in 1654.The purpose of the Dutch settlement in the Cape was to act as a replenishment station for ships passing the treacherous coast around the Cape on long voyages between the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies (now Indonesia).

During 1664, tensions between Great Britain and the Netherlands rose amid rumors of war. That same year, Commander Zacharias Wagenaer, successor to Jan van Riebeeck, was instructed by Commissioner Isbrand Goske to build a pentagonal fortress out of stone. The first stone was laid on 2 January 1666. The fortress was partially built by slave labor. The Dutch East India Company (VOC) was unsure about the size of the local population groups and thus feared a revolt if they enslaved them; instead they brought in up to 60,000 enslaved people from Madagascar, Mozambique, the Dutch-Indies, and India. The slaves were mistreated. There were many deaths from the extreme abuse from the guards. There was torture, whippings and with some cases, agonizing death. Because of all the brutality that happened at the Castle of Good Hope, there are many lingering spirits that haunt the castle.

The Castle of Good Hope in Cape Town is widely considered one of the most haunted places in South Africa and the entire Southern Hemisphere. Built between 1666 and 1679 by the Dutch East India Company (VOC), the country's oldest surviving colonial building has a long history of military imprisonment, torture, and executions. One of the most famous ghosts that haunts the castle is The Lady in Grey. The Lady in Grey is a distressed woman. She has been frequently spotted running through the corridors and grounds, clutching her face and crying. She has been seen by many tourists and locals. Then there is the Bell Tower Incident. The tower's bell once rang on its own. It is said to be haunted by a soldier who hung himself from the bell-rope, leading officials to permanently wall up the opening. Governor Pieter Gijsbert van Noodt is a popular ghost of the castle. The notoriously harsh governor died of a heart attack at his desk on the exact day he executed seven soldiers, one of whom allegedly cursed him with his dying breath. Visitors and staff still report feeling a heavy, oppressive presence in his former office. Then we have a ghost that no one should be frightened of. That ghost is The Phantom Black Dog. A mysterious spectral hound frequently appears to visitors before suddenly vanishing into thin air. Donna Lighthaven from the Isle of Man says she came across the Phantom Black Dog. Donna talked to the dog, and it actually came up to her and pawed her leg and then vanished. Donna says this dog's spirit is friendly, nothing to be afraid of. Finally you have the ghost of Lady Anne Barnard. The 18th-century socialite and wife of the colonial secretary is said to occasionally roam the property and entertains the guests by making noises or moving objects.

Security guards, caretakers, and late-night visitors frequently report unexplained phenomena, including phantom footsteps, disembodied voices, sudden temperature drops, and the feeling of being watched. Paranormal investigation teams, such as Ghost Hunters International have also explored the fortress and documented unusual electronic and thermal readings. Lori Denser from West Virginia says that when she visited the castle, she was looking in a mirror and saw The Lady in Grey standing behind her. Lori says that her right shoulder was touched by the Lady in Grey.
